

a chart of the origin and course of the glaciers. This is really a fine piece of work. The photographs giving the sculpturing and structure of both snow and rocks are of the greatest beauty, and remind me of every detail impressed on my mind when studying the realities. Appendix A has almost upset me. I had no idea that my geological work had any value; no one hitherto had paid any attention to it, and I had myself forgotten it—I may say utterly. Mr. Garwood's resurrection of it, and his most liberal appreciation of it is, I need not say, an extraordinary gratification. He has turned it to great purpose in his original views of the origin and building up and sculpturing of Sikkim, and his speculations are of very great interest and promise for the future.

'Again thanking you heartily for your book and for my rejuvenescence, Believe me, sincerely yours,

'JOS. D. HOOKER.'

ALPINE ACCIDENTS IN 1911.

On June 17 Dr. Hermann Rumpelt, aged 28, was killed by a fall from the summit of the Gross Wehlthurm (Saxon Switzerland). He was a well-known climber and an authority on the Hohe Tatra group, where, usually with Dr. A. v. Martin, he had made several first ascents. He also had to his credit the first ascent of the S.E. face of the Zehner (Sella Dolomites). Dr. Rumpelt appears to have overbalanced himself when about to descend by a doubled rope and fell about 60 metres, succumbing within 2 hours to his injuries. (Cf. 'Ö.A.Z.' vol. xxxiii. pp. 214 and 217-218.)

On June 25 Herr Karl Jene and Herr Ludwig Koziczinski were killed in attempting to ascend the N. face of the Rohač in the Hohe Tatra. They were apparently ascending a rock rib about the centre of the face, and when attempting to traverse to the right across rotten sloping slabs, Jene must have fallen, dragging his companion with him. The rescue party reached the spot where
